TO: Mr. Proctor
FROM: Bob V
SUBJECT: Military Economics Advisory Panel

REMARKS:

Attached is some proposed correspondence Bruce would use to contact those individuals he would like to have on his military economics panel. You will note he is proposing that you contact these individuals informally to see if they are willing to serve before the Director sends them a letter.

For what it is worth, it might be better to have Bruce make the initial contacts unless you know some of these individuals and while not normally a stickler for protocol, I would prefer Dr. Proctor to Ed in the Director's letters.

MEMORANDUM FOR: Deputy Director for Intelligence

SUBJECT : Military Economics Advisory Panel

1. After further consultation with [REDACTED] we have drawn up a revised list of proposed members for the Director's Military Economics Advisory Panel. The new list has three representatives from the academic community, two with directly related government experience, and one from a private research organization. The names of several alternates are also included in case some of the proposed members decline to serve. (Attachment A)

2. I have assumed that you will want to contact prospective Panel members informally before the Director issues a written invitation. Accordingly I have had sample letters prepared extending invitations to [REDACTED] to serve as chairman and [REDACTED] to serve as one of the Panel members. (Attachments B and C)

3. I will have all the further necessary correspondence prepared after receiving your approval of this approach.

[REDACTED]
BRUCE C. CLARKE, Jr.
Director
Strategic Research
